Top three golden finance roles in demand in Hong Kong for 2019 2019 Robert Half Salary Guide

- The top three most in-demand finance roles in Hong Kong for 2019: Finance Manager, Finance Accountant and Financial Planning and Analysis Manager.

Hong Kong, 15 April 2019 – According to the newly-released 2019 Robert Half Salary Guide, China's Belt and Road initiative is driving demand for skilled staff as headcounts increase within finance teams across Hong Kong, with the increased business investment across the city-state driving particular demand for finance managers and accountants.

Amidst this recruitment drive, finance employers still battle an ongoing skills shortage within the sector. In fact, independent Robert Half research has found just under three-quarters (72%) of Hong Kong CFOs currently find it challenging to source qualified finance professionals, with the number rising to 75% who predict it will become even more challenging in the coming five years.

Adam Johnston, Managing Director of Robert Half Hong Kong says: “Wage growth within Hong Kong’s financial sector has remained stable over the past 12 months, with salary increments mainly awarded to compensate for inflation. Chinese firms, in comparison to foreign companies, are one of the driving forces behind stable wage growth in the sector as they are behind active demand for entry-level financial professionals. This is partly caused by onshoring, where more companies are looking for quality local talent to fill these entry-level positions. Combined with the Belt and Road initiative that is spurring business investment and rising headcounts in Hong Kong, we expect continued demand for entry-level and value-add positions across the financial sector over the next 12 months.”

“While attractive salary and benefits packages remain crucial for Hong Kong’s financial employers to attract and retain top talent, training and development are also vital for hiring managers to win the ongoing war for talent. As traditional roles within finance become increasingly digitally-focused, companies need to identify opportunities to upskill their existing employees to prepare for a digital future.”

<sup>2</sup> In the 2019 Robert Half Salary Guide the salary ranges are presented in percentiles. Financial professionals who can navigate an increasingly complex business market are currently in high demand, and finance managers who can guide companies through volatile and changing business landscapes and digitised workplaces find themselves highly sought-after. Compounding this demand, more than one quarter (27%) of CFOs say finance management is the key area within the sector most difficult to source skilled candidates.

2. Finance Accountant

	Salary range
	Minimum	Maximum
Small/medium company	$291,000	$387,000
Large company	$324,000	$431,000

Despite the changing landscape of the financial sector with new technologies impacting the workplace, the “nuts and bolts” aspect of any company remains the same which is why finance accountants with a proven track-record of successfully running accounting and financial activities, providing sound economic analysis and interdepartmental financial updates are highly sought-after. However, almost three in 10 (29%) CFOs find it challenging to source qualified candidates within this area.

3. Financial Planning & Analysis Manager

	Salary range
	Minimum	Maximum
Small/medium company	$410,000	$720,000
Large company	$600,000	$960,000

Financial planning and analysis managers are in high demand in a digitised workplace as they are in a good position to make well-informed commercial decisions. However, the skills shortage continues with more than one in four (28%) CFOs finding it challenging to source skilled candidates within this area. Professionals with a heightened sense of awareness for how digitisation is changing the face of organisations, and who can forecast how revenue and expenditures will be impacted due to new technologies will be in high demand throughout 2019.
